FuelCell Energy, Inc. (NASDAQ:FCEL) shares rebounded on Thursday, climbing back toward $25 after the company announced a major collaboration with Siemens Corporation, a U.S. subsidiary of Siemens AG (OTC:SMERY).

FuelCell Energy And Siemens Team Up

FuelCell Energy and Siemens formalized their collaboration with a memorandum of understanding. Siemens will design and supply electrical balance-of-plant systems for fuel cell installations.

The systems will enable rapid deployment of commercial projects exceeding 100 megawatts.

This collaboration integrates FuelCell Energy's fuel cell technology with Siemens' electrical infrastructure and integration expertise.

The company aims to help customers deploy reliable on-site power more quickly. They also seek to reduce costs, shorten project timelines, and scale distributed energy systems.

The partnership involves joint development, integration, and delivery of distributed energy systems. These systems combine fuel cells, battery energy storage, microgrid controls, and medium-voltage electrical equipment.
